NIS2

Journey to Compliance

NIS2 compliance will become a strategic focus for the management of many organizations.

Achieving this compliance is a mandatory, legal requirement. It has the potential to strengthen your cyber security.

Establishing your organization as a trusted, secure partner is key in today's digital ecosystem.

Understanding the directive

The NIS2 directive introduces controls that organizations need to take to improve their cyber security defences.

The EU directive defines two categories of entities and simplifies the scope with a list of 17 sectors.

In particular, it mandates risk management practices, incident reporting procedures and security policies.

The controls affect internal operations and extend to organizations' service providers.

Organizations should already start their journey to compliance and allocate the necessary budget and resources in anticipation.

Pre-transition: EU countries will develop and adapt national laws to comply with NIS2 requirements.

18 October 2024

Deadline for integration into national law of EU member states.

Post-transition: Regulators will monitor and enforce compliance through inspections, audits and fines for non-compliance.
